Examples of RO/PCTE courses that are articulated with college credits:

- Valley College: Saddleback College and Irvine
- OC College: Fullerton College

What classes should I take?

1. Jump-start your college education
2. Save Time
3. Save Money

There are three great reasons:
- Many articulation courses qualify for 4-0 college units.
- Many articulation courses are double counted.
- Many articulation courses are available.

Who can participate?

Students who take RO/PCTE courses in high school.

Taking RO/PCTE (career technical education) courses allows community college students to earn high school students to earn community college credit.

An articulation agreement is between a high school/RO/PCTE and a community college.
